Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 08 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Further heavy, potentially thundery, showers arriving overnight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Staying quite cloudy and warm this evening and overnight with further showers pushing northwards across the southwest. These showers turning heavy and potentially thundery at times. Minimum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Thursday:
A mixture of sunshine and showers, heavy at times and, again, bringing the risk of some thunder especially during the afternoon. Feeling cooler than Wednesday, notably for Somerset and Gloucestershire. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Friday unsettled with further showers throughout the day. These then clearing from the south and west later in the afternoon and evening, leading to a largely fine and dry weekend.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.